What is all of that?
It's to procreate my new shop.
I got cold easily, so I was trying these kind of things...
Does that bewitch it?
Yes, isn't it cute?
It looks horrible.
Hehe.

Do you believe in things you can't see?
Yes?
Like that bonfire.
If the firewood that you threw there had only one empty firewood.
What is going to know?
If it gets burnt, then that's everything.
It can happen like it never happened.
No, what's more important is that you don't know about it.
That firewood that somebody threw could be you.

The boy accepted the peddler's gift.

The rule of that gift was simple.

The bad luck that he gets would stop over him and he would 'luckily' avoid unfortunate accidents.

But somebody else in the world was going to receive it instead.

In the worst-case scenario, they could lose their life.

So the next morning, when the boy woke up, he saw the world a little differently.

Let's be comfortable. I won't know if it was caused by me or not...
Are there people who live without any accidents happening to them in this world? If I live like that, I'll forget about this pipe soon.
More than anything, if I could stop worrying so much...

Who is that human mole beside you?
Oldie, she's a mere juvenile from me.
As much as I can see him. I don't think he's flower.
I don't call Eydnus and Elmira's fathers even though they weren't kins.

Oldie, are you going to be back with us now?
I'm not back. I just had free time...
Our shop needs more workers right now. Do you want to come and help us?
Everybody went to the capital city... I must borrow your hand as well.
Hahaha

I don't know if one arm can help or much, but I'm happy to see you helping us.
Is everyone happy or do they just want to tease me? You should just choose one response...
Then I'm going to leave you

The autumn festival was joyful.

Seeing the boy's change and how he could laugh made the villagers happy.

He ignored the rocks which rolled inside his heart.
